Nolato Stargard Sp. z o. o. is a subcontractor in medical device manufacturing, whose primary objective is to maintain a high and repeatable level of production quality.

We are always willing to meet specific requirements, needs, and expectations of our clients and any parties involved, by providing products and services of a proper quality within the required period of time.

We are going to keep accomplishing this goal by:

- implementation and continuous development of a quality management system which meets the requirements set out in the standard EN ISO 9001:2015 and applicable legal provisions,
- implementation and maintenance of the effectiveness of the quality management system which meets the requirements of the standard EN ISO 13485:2016 and applicable legal provisions,
- continuous improvement of our operational activity,
- regular control of the quality measures through analysis, keeping record of any discrepancies, and internal and external audits,
- responding to problems and incompatibilities efficiently through taking corrective and preventive actions as well as verifying the quality management system,
- developing a sense of responsibility for quality among our employees and improving their qualifications through regular training.

All operations should be consistent with the applicable standards and laws in terms of quality. We strive for our suppliers to have an efficient quality system.

The customer satisfaction and the workmanship are both evaluated through surveys and keeping record of any deviations.

The Quality Policy is acknowledged, understood and observed in our company, and the efficiency of the quality management system is continuously being improved with the involvement of all the employees.
